

Get Set for Promotion

thecareercoach

Have you been told that despite hitting your goals and KPIs that “You’re just not ready” for a promotion?

Do you see others getting promoted and wonder, “What are they doing that I’m not?”

Do you just know in that it’s time to go for that promotion, but need a thought-through plan to get you there?

If so, Get Ready for Promotion will help you get clear about exactly what you need to do.

And, (spoiler alert), it may or may be nothing to do with your skillset – and everything to do with your mindset, relationships and profile within your business. Ready to read on...?

You'll receive six intensive and powerful hours of coaching in which you'll:

- Get clear on your strengths – what makes you great at your job and adds value to your business (and how to leverage these to impress others).
- Get feedback on what's in the way of you landing that promotion – the gaps that you most need to pay attention to (and plan and practice with your coach how you will close them).
- Explore ways to build your leadership skills inside and outside of your organisation, so that you have solid examples you can use in interview, especially when opportunities to lead in your current role seem few.
- Learn how to work with difficult personalities, and win them over.
- Manage your time and energy, because showing you can work sustainably and manage strong emotions in yourself is crucial to confirming you can handle additional responsibility and exposure.
- Build your social capital (network) so that others think of you when opportunities arise.

...and more.

Never say “my good work should speak for itself”. On one level it sounds like humility but at another level it implies you think you're above that and don't have to promote yourself. You're not above it. Your job is two-fold if you want a promotion. To show competence and credibility.

In other words, doing a great job is only have the job. Expanding your sphere of influence is the other. They're different things.

FEES AND COACHES

Get Ready for Promotion is £975 for individuals, and £1200 if sponsored by your organisation.

Rosine Suire and Tim Fordham deliver this programme.

HOW CAN I FIND OUT IF THIS WOULD WORK FOR ME?

This programme is best suited to executives and professionals ready to take the next step up in their organisation.

Results depend on the level of focus and commitment you give to this programme. Expect to be challenged and to step outside of your comfort zone. (We have a saying, “There is no learning in the comfort zone and no comfort in the learning zone!”)

To find out more about how this programme works and whether it is suitable for you, we advise you to book a no-obligation 40-minute consultation by phone or Zoom through our website here.

Website: www.thecareercoach.co.uk
Phone: +44 (0) 20 7702 9299